Socially-conscious bags

Charles and Keith are selling these great-looking bags, called “Hope” made by Women of Hope Organization (PWHO) in Cambodia to raise funds for UNIFEM’s Cambodian Community of Women Living with HIV/AIDS (CCW). Kudos to you, Charles and Keith. I hope you sell many of these. They cost $39.90 and 100% of proceeds go to benefit the HIV positive women in Cambodia. Please, buy one.

Here’s what CCW do: “UNIFEM’s CCW currently represents HIV positive women in twelve provinces as well as sixteen self-help groups in Phnom Penh. It seeks the empowerment of women living with HIV/AIDS in Cambodia, promoting leadership and aiming to improve the quality of their life. CCW also helps enable these women join in the participation of social and community activities without stigma and discrimination. As one of CCW’s self-help groups, PWHO employs more than 30 HIV positive women who produce woven works of art and oversee the production process from conceptualization to distribution and sales.”
